ONE SLIP IS ONLY FLAW FRANKS CASE

Failure to Properly Hide Body Only Hitch in Scheme

By Associated Press Leased Wire Chicago, Aug. 21.—Failure to hide sufficiently the body of Robert Frank was the breaking point in the plot of Nathan Jr., and Richard Loeb, according to the state's analysis of the crime given today before Judge John R. Caverly by Joseph Savage, assistant state's attorney.

An impassioned denunciation of the defendants and with waving arms and pounding fists, Mr. Savage told the court that if Leopold had forced the body well into the culvert instead of pushing it with his foot, it would not have been found.

"They would not have been apprehended in 100,000 years," said Mr. Savage.

He described the attempts to get $10,000 ransom from Bobby's father, pointing out that the identification of the body became known to Mr. Franks only five minutes before he received the last message from "George Johnson," the name signed to the ransom letter.

Well Schemed Plan.

Mr. Savage asserted that Leopold and Loeb had drawn their plans so fine that if the father had followed directions and gone to a drug store in a cab furnished by the kidnappers, he would have been sent scurrying to a railroad depot, there to board a train due to leave a few minutes later.

In the parlor car, the boys had placed a letter addressed to Mr. Franks and giving full directions on how to throw the money from the moving train.

"They would have reached the designated point in their automobile at that precise moment, of the train were on time," said Mr. Savage. "How could they have been traced? No one knew whence came the telephone call to Mr. Franks, nor who had ordered the cab sent to his home. No one would have known who telephoned from the drug store and the father would have had no chance to notify the police in advance of where he had been told to go or how to dispose of the money."

"It was a coldly intellectual plan, devilish in its deliberation," said Mr. Savage.

DEFENSE MAY START

By Associated Press Leased Wire Chicago, Aug. 21.—Deaths from alcoholism have reached pre-war figures at the Cook County hospital and the Psychopathic Hospital, but the deadly effect is more quickly produced, according to figures compiled by Dr. Francis J. Gerty, of the Psychopathic Hospital, said today. The number of deaths in 1917 from alcoholism was nearly 16 a month and now the monthly death rate is approximately 20 a month. The total number of alcoholic patients at both hospitals in 1912 was 818, and increased to 2,091 in 1922, Dr. Gerty said.

By Associated Press Leased Wire Chicago, Aug. 21.—Spectators came early today to the hearing of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb to hear further denunciation of the defendants by Joseph Savage, assistant state's attorney and to watch for possible effects of his epithets upon the student criminals. There was a prospect that Walter Bachrach, one of the brothers associated with Clarence S. Darrow in the defense might start late today to sum up on behalf of the confessed kidnappers and murderers of Robert Franks.

After detailing the precaution taken by the slayers after crime Mr. Savage dwelt upon the telephone message to Mrs. Jacob Franks, the victim's mother.

Picture Mother's Anguish.

"Can you picture the feelings of that mother?" queried Mr. Savage. "Can you imagine how anyone could call a mother and tell her that her son was safe when at that very moment, he was lying cold in a water-filled drain pipe?"

The mailing of the ransom letter, throwing away of the cold-chisel were next described.

"And when the night watchman, who found the chisel, picked it up, it was still wet with the blood of Bobby Franks," exclaimed Mr. Savage, pounding on the desk in front of the judge.

"I wonder if they slept well that night," he continued. "I wonder if they had a phantasm in which the picture of Bobby Franks appeared in their dreams."

Mr. Savage consumed the rest of the morning session explaining how Mr. Crowe questioned Mr. Leopold.

CATALINA ONCE AGAIN IN TOILS OF DIXON COPS

East End Bootlegger Was Interrupted for Short Time.

Frank Catalina, whose alleged bootlegging operations have given the Dixon police more trouble than those of any other suspected violation of the prohibition laws, was arrested by Chief Van Bibber and Officer Jones Wednesday evening at his home on Noble avenue, after, according to the officers, he sold part of a bottle of liquor to a "client," which bottle of liquor the police will introduce in evidence when his case is heard before Justice Grover Gehant Friday morning at 8 o'clock. Catalina has been arrested by the officers six times in liquor charges, it is said, and he is now under bonds to the September grand jury on a similar charge. His bonds of $400 to appear for hearing before the Justice Friday morning were furnished by his attorney, H. A. Brooks.

BRASS TACKS, NOT BOMBS, CAMPAIGN SLOGAN FOR DAWES

Thinks American Voters Want Straight Shooting from Candidates.

By Associated Press Leased Wire Albany, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(En route to Maine with Gen. Dawes)—Determination to conduct a "campaign of brass tacks—not bombs" was reiterated by Charles W. Dawes as he traveled eastward on his first campaign trip as the republican candidate for vice president. Such an intention was announced by the nominee in his acceptance address Tuesday night at his home in Evanston, Ill., and was emphasized by him today in discussing the speech he will make Saturday in Augusta, Maine.

"The American voting public, in my opinion, want straight from the shoulder shooting from their candidates for national office and I intend to give it to them," was the way he summed up his intention.

No Prepared Speeches.

Believing of extemporaneous addresses lends itself more to such treatment of the issues than does prepared speech making. He does not intend to write out his speeches in advance. In fact, before leaving Evanston yesterday he threw in the waste basket the address he had prepared for delivery at Lincoln, Neb., August 29, on the agricultural question and will speak extemporaneously. He prepared his Augusta address in part several days ago.

Although a man of means, Mr. Dawes is not using a special train or even a special car on the present trip but only an ordinary Pullman in which he reserved space the same as many travelers.

By Associated Press Leased Wire Chicago, Aug. 21.—Using an electric motor in place of a traction engine, Eugene and De Loss Funk, farmers living near Bloomington threshed 600 bushels of wheat in four and one half hours according to an announcement of the Illinois Power & Light Corporation.

A forty horsepower electric motor costing $498, a transformer, costing $541 and other accessories items $390, a total of about $1,390, were connected with a 32-55 separator. The threshing was at the rate of 133 bushels an hour. The wheat averaged 25 bushels to the acre. The exact cost of the current consumed has not been computed but is believed to be about $25 a day of eight or ten hours.

MCCOY'S ATTORNEYS PLAN DEFENSE ON MURDER CHARGE

Deny They Plan to Plead Guilty in Court Next Monday.

By Associated Press Leased Wire Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 21.—Attorneys for Kid McCoy, former pugilist charged with the murder of Mrs. Theresa W. Moss, here Aug. 12, today were organizing their forces for an attack on the iron ring of evidence which District Attorney Keyes believes he has welded around the 31-year-old fighter.

While they would not divulge their plans, they took occasion yesterday to deny categorically that these plans provided for a plea of guilty by McCoy when he appears before Judge Charles S. Crail next Monday. The former motion picture actor and boxer was arraigned yesterday.

Before his attorneys would ask for a postponement of the plea, McCoy shouted out in answer to the murder charges: "I did not" to the other charges he was different.

Meanwhile, arrangements were made for his examination by additional defense alienists, although there had been no repetition of the antics which Tuesday caused police detectives to express the belief that the Kid's mind had cracked.

Find Woman's Jewels

Evidence unfavorable to the Kid's defense was revealed yesterday when $5,000 worth of jewels, which Albert Ames declared were taken from his wife, were recovered by police from Mrs. Jennie Thomas, McCoy's sister.

Governor Len Small at Carroll Co. Fair

The Carroll county fair to be held at Mt. Carroll next week, has been fortunate in securing the presence of Hon. Len Small, the Good Roads Governor of Illinois, who will speak on the issues of the day on Thursday.

This is a big fair and a splendid program.

GOV. SMALL FOR ROAD TO EVERY TOWN

Seeks Support for New Bond Issue at Fall Election

By Associated Press Leased Wire Peoria, Ill., Aug. 21.—A pledge to support legislation extending the hard road system in Illinois to every city and village, was made by Governor Len Small today in an address at the fifteenth annual observance of the Peoria fish fry. The governor was the chief speaker.

Besides seeking support for his own candidacy the governor voiced a plea on behalf of the $100,000,000 hard road bond issue to be voted on at the fall election. This bond issue provides funds for extending the hard roads system to nearly ten thousand miles.

Connect Every Community

"While this great system of ten thousand miles will connect every city and most of the villages," the governor said, "I do not feel that the system will be complete until every community of people, every village and every city in our state is connected with this system by a paved highway."

"There are approximately 160 incorporated cities and villages which have not located on either of the bond issue systems, and I believe that some plan should be devised to connect these communities with the system. To me it does not seem fair that the people living in a village a mile, more or less, from a paved highway, should provide at their own expense, connection which this highway, while hundreds of other cities in the state are connected at state expense."

"If I am re-elected governor, I shall recommend to the legislature that some means be provided without direct taxation, for the connection of every city and village with the bond issue systems of roads."

JACOB FRANKS PLEADS MERCY FOR TWO BOYS

Asks New Chance for Lads Arrested Yesterday for Letters.

By Associated Press Leased Wire Chicago, Aug. 21.—Jacob Franks, father of the kidnapped and slain Robert Franks, for whose slayers, Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, Mr. Franks had advocated death, today asked mercy for the 11 year old and 19 year old brothers, Earl and Fielding Smith who were arrested last night after sending him two extortion letters.

Mr. Franks today had a long talk with the boys who confessed they had written the letters demanding $5000 or threatening death to Mr. Franks' wife and daughter. He told them they were misguided boys to seek money in such a manner to open a grocery. His motive they admitted acted them.

The letter, Mr. Franks told them, had caused him much anguish but that he would recommend leniency for them, and ask that they be released and given another chance to live straight lives.

LONG WAIT IN ICELAND IS ENDED THIS MORNING

Fliers, Accompanied by Italian, Are Off on Dangerous Journey

By Associated Press Leased Wire Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 21.—The American round the world fliers and Lieut. Locatelli, Italian aviator, hopped off from here at 8:15 o'clock this morning.

The fliers passed the United States Cruiser Richmond, on patrol about seventy miles off the coast from Iceland, at 9:35 o'clock. Lieut. Locatelli was leading his American companions, Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Erik H. Nelson, by five miles.

The weather was beautiful and flying conditions excellent when the aviators set out for Greenland. Lieut. Smith's plane lifted from the water a few minutes after 8 o'clock and Lieut. Nelson's plane was off two minutes later.

Careful Preparations

Lieut. Smith, the flight commander, had been up all night, recording weather reports and working out plans for coping with weather and mechanical conditions which he and Lieut. Nelson might encounter during the long and hazardous jump to the shores of Greenland.

Lieut. John Harding Jr., mechanic on Lieut. Nelson's plane also had been up all night caring for the plane.

Barn East Ashton Burned on Tuesday

About nine o'clock Tuesday morning, the large barn on the Willard Hawthorn farm, east of Ashton, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Very close to the barn was another large building which Mr. Hawthorn used as a corn crib and it also burned. The barn was full of hay which was lost. With the help of his neighbors and friends who saw the need of immediate action and the response to the calls for help the things that were in the buildings were saved. Some cobs burned, but the grain that was in the crib was saved. No animals were in the barn at the time which seems to be quite fortunate. Mr. Hawthorn carried some insurance on the property.

A strange co-incident happened Tuesday morning when the barn on the farm was burned. Mr. Hawthorn was struck by lightning. Very similar were the losses. The home place of Mr. Hawthorne is near Oregon, and everything was saved but the hay. It seems strange that both fires should have happened at the same time, by the same cause, and about the same time.

Today's Market Report

Heat Brings Corn Down Again Today

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Although wheat averaged higher in price today, declines took place at the close. Corn market weakness, the result of sudden hot weather, pulled down wheat values. Wheat closed unsettled 1/2 to 1c net lower, Sept. 1.26 1/2 to 1.26 3/4 and Dec. 1.21 1/2 to 1.21 3/4.

By Associated Press Leased Wire Chicago, Aug. 21.—Influenced by an unexpected advance at Liverpool, the wheat market here took a decided upward swing today during the early dealings. Unfavorable weather conditions in western Europe and in Argentina were additional bullish factors. Besides, frost was reported in the Canadian northwest. Opening prices, which ranged from 1/2 to 1c higher, with Sept. 1.27 1/2 to 1.28 and Dec. 1.23 1/2 to 1.23 3/4, were followed by material further gains.

Corn prices showed a downward tendency as a result of a heat wave over parts of the corn belt. After opening 1/2 to 1/4c lower, Dec. 1.15 1/2 to 1.15 3/4, the market underwent a moderate further setback, and then rallied, but later sagged again.

Oats were easy owing to corn weakness. Starting unchanged to 1/4c off, Dec. 55 1/2 to 57c, the market hardened a little, and then steadied at a trifle below yesterday's finish.

Provisions lacked support, despite higher quotations on hogs. Subsequently, the wheat market declined, sympathizing with corn. Export business in wheat enlarged on the decline.

Later, the corn market showed still more pronounced setbacks, with selling general and support much less aggressive than of late. The close was heavy, 3/4c to 1/2c net lower, Dec. 1.11 1/2 to 1.11 3/4.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Washing Windows.

To wash windows successfully you must have several clean cloths and not use water so freely that it drips from the pane or sash.

Add Salt to Gasoline.

A little salt added to the gasoline will prevent the rings that sometimes result from cleaning out a spot.

Cooking Mutton.

Always remove the thin skin that comes next to the fat when cooking mutton as this is what gives it the strong, disagreeable flavor.

Table Silver.

Your table silver will require very infrequent cleanings if you always wash it in plenty of soap and hot water and rub dry with soft, clean towels after each using.

If you baked a Christmas fruit cake last year you will like it occasionally for afternoon tea with a "long cool drink." It's much more fattening than sponge cake or the ordinary summer cake you "stir up quick" and makes a welcome change.

Toss the lettuce and apple for the gaining diet together with thick cream as well as the fruit juice. The cream should be very cold and the salad served as soon as mixed.

Sprinkle square crackers with grated cheese before toasting for the luncheon.

Miss Hazel Calvert Bride Galen Price

The Bradford church was the scene of a pretty wedding last evening at 6 o'clock, when Miss Hazel Calvert of Ashton became the bride of Galen Price of Polo. The church was decorated in green and white which furnished an appropriate background for the bridal party. The matron of honor, Mrs. Ruth Eckler Kersten, and the bridesmaids, the Misses Mabel and Mary Price, Edna Wolfe and Florence Vaupeil, in their organ gowns of delicate hues presented a pretty sight and gave the necessary touch of color. The bride was beautiful in a gown of white satin crepe and a veil of tulle fastened with orange blossoms. She was attended by Miss Mabel Price of Polo as maid of honor, the groom by his best man, Harold Hoff of Waterloo, Iowa. The guests were ushered in by Orno Kersten, Claire and Glenn Pfoutz and Eli Stoltz.

Before the ceremony Miss Frances Sarli sang, "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." The bride party entered to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Miss Dorothy Bresson, with cello accompaniment by Miss Miriam Eckler. During the ceremony the music was furnished by the Rev. O. D. Buck of Franklin Grove, a cello solo, "To a Wild Rose" was played softly by Miss Packher. As the bride party left the church Miss Bresson played Mendelssohn's wedding march.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orno J. Kersten after the marriage. Numerous useful and beautiful gifts were received by the happy couple from their many friends.

Some of the out-of-town guests were Miss Frances Sarli of Toulon, Illinois, Eli Stoltz of Lima, O., Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Price, the Misses Mabel and Mary Price, Miss Rosa Stauffer, Mr. and Mrs. J. Price Heckman, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Heckman, all of Polo, Mr. and Mrs. John Price of Oregon, Harold Hoff of Waterloo, Iowa, Miss Bernice Brunsdold of Beloit, Wis.

Miss Calvert was graduated from the LaVerne Academy, LaVerne, Cal., in the class of 1919 after which she attended LaVerne College for one year. After three years of teaching in and about Ashton, Miss Calvert attended DeKalb Normal school from which she was graduated in July of this year.

The groom is a graduate of Polo High school and an alumnus of Mt. Morris College and the University of Illinois from which he graduated in 1922. For the past two years he has taught in the Ashton High school.

Mr. and Mrs. Price will leave soon for their new home at Washington College, Tennessee, where Mr. Price has a position as teacher of Agriculture.

Mrs. Myers Won at Amboy Fair

Mrs. Jack Myers of Everett street won two premiums at the Amboy Fair, one for rugs and one for lace edged pillow slips.

Mrs. Myers has made five braided Memorial rugs, working into them pieces of her deceased husband's clothing, for each one of her children. They are handsome rugs, the same on both sides. It was one of these rugs which won a prize at the fair. This morning Mrs. Myers sent this rug to Wisconsin, to her eldest child, Mrs. S. F. Weatherly.

Mrs. Myers spent week at Amboy at the fair and her pillow slips, which won a premium are very handsome. Mrs. Myers, who is seventy-seven years old, is most ambitious and looks and acts not a day over fifty.

THE PUBLIC IS CONCERNED.

Mr. Clarence Darrow, attorney for Leopold and Loeb, is provoked to vehement outburst. "The public," he says, "thinks it's doing a fine thing when it rouses itself from its customary lethargy and shouts 'hang them!' But it's damned unfair."

It is the lawyer speaking—the lawyer who can never understand that the adjudication of crime is not a mere matter for bench and bar alone. The public is concerned, must be concerned, or its agencies of justice will have no background, no authoritative potency.

Moreover, crime is not a mere attack upon individual rights or person. It is an attack upon society—the public—and it is the part of wisdom and of safety for society to give active heed to all such assaults.

When accused murderers plead guilty to the serious charge against them, admit their sanity, and confess knowledge of the difference between right and wrong, as Leopold and Loeb did, the public naturally and logically believes there isn't much to be done aside from administering the punishment duly prescribed.

That has been the usual procedure in the past, but Mr. Darrow has discovered something new that, he thinks, neutralizes admitted guilt, admitted sanity and admitted knowledge of right and wrong.

That something is the assumed inability of the accused to practice the right that they are admittedly able to distinguish from wrong. That is, while the young fiends are far advanced intellectually, they are as deficient emotionally as a child of four or five years is, and this timely discovery of the hired lawyer, backed by convenient and hired alienist, must operate in saving them from the gallows, the prison or the insane asylum, must relieve them from the grave responsibility of their crime, as if they were babes.

It is a novel presentment in mitigation of a confessed crime committed by college graduates. Mr. Darrow thinks the public is "damned unfair" because it refuses to believe the plea as anything more than piffle whose introduction into the case reduces court procedure to a travesty most disgusting.

The idea that men with nothing more than baby emotions would calmly set about committing "the perfect crime," plan and calculate it for six months, anticipate and attempt to defeat every possibility of discovery, prepare loopholes of escape and alibis, and even in the hunt for the perpetrators of the crime they themselves had committed—the idea that baby minds could or would do all this is quite beyond even a gullible public to accept with equanimity.

It is no wonder the public shows the roilly disposition Mr. Darrow describes as "damned unfair." But neither he nor his clients are to be pleased in this matter. Pleading "the baby act" will not do. The main result and the only safe one to be attained is that demanded by society through its laws—the adequate punishment of the guilty and the vindication of justice.

REPUBLICAN PROSPECTS.

California, Oregon and Washington seem to have swung into the Coolidge and Dawes column, according to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who has returned to New York from a six weeks' stay on the Pacific coast. Davis will be the third man in a number of western states, Dr. Butler believes.

Senator George Moses, chairman of the Republican Senatorial campaign committee, has expressed to the Eastern national headquarters his conviction that the Republicans will elect United States Senators in Oklahoma, Tennessee and Kentucky, in which three states the Democrats are having a bitter factional warfare. Says Senator Moses:

"After ten days in the west I have no reason to believe we will lose any of the seats we now hold, and in addition to the three Democratic seats (Colorado, Massachusetts, Montana) we expect to win we are now confident of victories in Oklahoma, Kentucky and Tennessee. The situation in each of these states is similar, inasmuch as the Democratic primaries produced bitterness between opposing factions within the Democratic party itself. A division of Democratic support in these states, therefore, is certain.

"There is nothing to the election of the President and General Dawes. It is certain."

BETTER.

Times are improving elsewhere than on the farms, though soaring grain prices have been getting most of the attention—quite naturally, since the average man has gotten accustomed to regard rising prices as the sure sign of prosperity's approach. (As soon as times get good, "they" get ready to take our money from us. The more we get, the more we have to pay.)

Railroad freight traffic continues climbing steadily. If the upward movement isn't checked, another month will find the roads moving as much freight as a year ago when times were booming. This either reflects confidence in the outcome of the presidential election—or indifference.

WEATHER.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 16—PETEY POLAR BEAR'S HOUSE

There sat Mister Bear reading his paper.

"Let's go to see Petey Polar Bear," said Weeny to the Twins.
"All right!" said Nancy and Nick. Just like that. "Where does he live?"
"Up north near Santa Claus," said Weeny.

"Near Mister and Mrs. Seal?" asked Nick.

"Not so very far," said Weeny. "If I hadn't floated away on an iceberg, we'd have gone to see Petey while we were up north before. But since we have so much magic along, it won't take us long to go back. Got my satchel with my mighty and specs?"

"We've got it," said Nancy. "And your tooth brush too."

"Then all aboard for Santa Claus Land!" cried Weeny swinging his trunk back and forth pretending he was a brakeman with a lantern. "Toot! Toot!"

And away he started to the cold cold north to visit Petey Polar Bear, his old circus friend.

And you'd be surprised how quickly they got there on the elephant express. You'd certainly be surprised.

"Why, in no time at all they were standing right before Petey's house and knocking on his ice door."

"Come in," said a grumbly, growly voice.

So Weeny turned the knob with his trunk and went in, but it was a pretty tight squeeze and the Twins nearly got scraped off his back.

There sat Mister Bear reading his paper.

He looked surprised when he saw them. "Why, how d' do?" he growled.

ed pleasantly. "I didn't know we had company. Do sit down. Mrs. Bear is out hanging up our winter furs so the moths won't get into them. She'll be in in a minute."

"Is Petey at home?" asked Weeny elephant, sitting down to let the Twins slide off his back.

"Not just now," growled Mister Bear. "He's gone to the fish store to get some fish for lunch. What news do you bring?"

"Oh, there isn't any news, much," said Weeny. "Things are just about the same."

"How did the ball game turn out?" asked Mister Bear.

"Oh, the Boxers won," said Weeny. Two hundred to one hundred and ninety-nine!"

"Why, I thought you said there wasn't any news!" said Mister Bear, in surprise. "That's news. And what happened to the airplanes that started round the world? I've been looking for them to come this way but I haven't seen any sign of them yet."

"Why, they've been home some days," said Weeny.

"That's news, too!" said Mister Bear in a pleased voice. "I'm ever so glad you came to visit Petey."

Weeny and Nancy and Nick were all thinking the same thing. They were—thinking. "If Mister Bear keeps on, we won't have much time to play with Petey."

They had never seen such a curious person in all their lives.

CUBS DROPPED A COUPLE AND SLID DOWN LADDER

Brooklyn Nosed Killer's Team Out of Third Place.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Rounding the last turn for the wire, the Brooklyn Dodgers, hard-headed by Uncle Robbie, are making a desperate bid to overhaul the league-leading Giants.

The Dodgers took the last game of the series from the smoke city aggregation 3-2 yesterday after 11 innings, for their third consecutive victory, and went into third place, passing the Cubs, who dropped two games to Boston 2-0, and 5-0. Brooklyn has come through in 12 of 14 starts and is now only six and one-half games behind the Giants.

The Cardinals took a new lease of life at the expense of the Phillies, beating the Fletcher crew in both the curtain-raiser and the night cap 3-1 and 13-10.

Only one game was played in the younger league, Boston nosing out Cleveland in a well-played contest, 6-4. Flagstad, hero of the game made four hits, a sensational running catch and was instrumental in scoring three runs.

"Casey" Stengel, returning from a honeymoon, was largely responsible for knocking the Cubs into fourth place. Stengel was responsible for the runs in the opener, driving in one and scoring the other and his homer accounted for three runs in the second game.

Jack Fournier bagged a circuit blow off Kremen of the Pirates. It was his twenty-fourth of the season.

MARS COMING CLOSE TO OLD EARTH FRIDAY

Many Telescopes to Be Trained on Planet During Week.

Springfield, Ill.—Telescopes in at least seven Illinois observatories are trained on Mars this month, in an effort to catch a fleeting glimpse of "Our Sister Planet" and determine for all time whether life exists in the earth's nearest neighbor, in the universe.

Mars, according to scientists is closer to the earth at this time, than it will be for many years, and astronomers in all parts of the world are attempting to get a good view of the planet, before the terrestrial mechanics, which moves the stars, whisks it away again, into space. Mars, because of its proximity to the earth, has always been of a great interest in scientists. It moves in a course around the sun, which coincides closely to that of the earth, but as Mars is outside of the orbit of the earth, the Martian year is approximately twice as long as the earthly year. This year the two planets approach each other when Mars is at its closest point to the sun, while the earth is at approximately its farthest point from the sun. This will bring the two within slightly less than 35,000,000 miles of each other at midnight, Aug. 22.

Few, if any, of the telescopes in Illinois are large enough to get a satisfactory picture of Mars, according to scientists, but that of the University of Chicago located in the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., just across the state line, is the largest of its type in the world. It is a 40 inch, refracting telescope, and is fully equipped to observe Mars as it swings toward the earth. Other observatories are located at Northwestern University, the University of Illinois, Elgin and Springfield. A number of smaller telescopes are also in use in the state. Because of climatic conditions, and the fact that Illinois is, comparatively speaking, a low state, very few big observatories have been located in the state. Lick Observatory, which uses a 60 inch, reflecting telescope is located on Mt. Wilson, California. This is largest telescope in the world and was placed on Mt. Wilson because of the thin clear atmosphere and the freedom from vibration. The same consideration led to the establishment of the Lowell observatory in Flagstaff, Arizona.

The chief feature about Mars which makes the present investigation interesting, according to Fred H. Weck, of the local weather bureau, is the great controversy as to whether there are engineering works on the planet. During the Martian winter, scientists have observed a light cap at either end of the planet, which many claim to be ice caps. In the spring these caps have been observed to fade away but as they do so a series of well defined lines, or scratches, appear on the surface of the planet. Many have argued that these lines are canals, which are thrown into relief in the spring by the vegetation, which springs up along their banks. The lines seem to follow a geometric pattern in many cases, and some of them appear to be parallel.

The idea that life could exist on the planet has been scoffed at by other astronomers.

planet, saying that it is too cold and that any life that ever existed was extinguished by cold, and by the lack of atmosphere and water. Mars, being smaller than the earth, is supposed to have lost most of its air and moisture. To this argument, other scientists reply by saying that the thin atmosphere has saved the lives of the inhabitants by allowing the sun rays to come almost directly to the surface of Mars, without absorption. According to Mr. Weck, it is only a question of time, until telescopes can be built that will solve the mystery.

Increase in Costs of Dairy Foods Early

Urbana, Ill.—Advances in the prices of dairy feed not only have come earlier this year, but have also been greater than usual this season, according to W. B. Novins, assistant chief in dairy cattle feeding at the University of Illinois.

During June the ten prices of such feeds as wheat bran, linseed oil meal, gluten feed and cotton seed meal jumped as much as $2.50, while the advance in price of some of these feeds was as much as $6 a ton, he said. Further advances are predicted, when the barn feeding begins.

Dairymen who have not laid in a supply of needed feed can get around the recent advance in prices by substituting cheaper feeds for some of the higher priced ones, he recommended. A hundred pounds of ground shelled corn, the price of which has taken an upward trend, may be replaced by 108 pounds of barley, 101 pounds of hominy feed or 122 lb. oats without any loss of feeding value. In fact, the barley and oats contain slightly more protein than the corn, he said.

"Using these comparative feeding values and figuring corn at 84 cents a bushel, dairymen can afford to pay 67 cents a bushel, for a bushel of barley, 39 cents for oats and $29.70 a ton for hominy feed.

"With corn at $1 a bushel, barley is worth 79 cents a bushel, oats 47 cents and hominy feed $35.35 a ton. These prices do not take the cost of grinding the grains into consideration.

"Likewise it is possible to substitute some of the cheaper protein feeds for the highest priced ones. Usually the protein concentrates have the highest percentage of protein are the cheapest source of element. However, when corn is high in price, the value of the lower protein feeds increase.

MAXWELL Initiates a New Order

The public in general probably has no adequate realization of the great advances which have recently been made in motor car engineering.

It is a fact that the good Maxwell, together with the Chrysler Six, has literally accomplished a revolution in motor car results.

If you have not familiarized yourself with the good Maxwell since Chrysler engineers began their work with it, you cannot begin to appreciate what it means to thorough satisfaction and economical, care-free motoring.

Its engineering design and its fine materials are directly responsible for the statements of owners that the good Maxwell now costs less to maintain than any car they have ever known.

When you ride in the good Maxwell, be prepared for a quietness and a smoothness that you probably never expected from a four-cylinder engine.

One reason why you don't feel any trace of vibration when you ride behind the Maxwell motor, is the fact that the reciprocating parts of the engine are balanced to the fraction of an ounce.

Another reason is a floating platform spring mounting under the front end of the motor—a wonderfully effective device which is exclusive to Maxwell.

Owners will tell you that gasoline economy generally averages 24 miles to the gallon.

With this economy is coupled performance that would be gratifying in a car of far greater cost and power.

You accelerate from 5 to 25 miles an hour in eight seconds, when you drive a good Maxwell.

Its engine, with displacement only a fraction over 185 cubic inches, develops power that will take you anywhere a car can go—and some places where some cars cannot go.

The car is a revelation in ease of steering. Its ease of riding is equally remarkable.

The spring suspension is one reason for this. The noticeable absence of motor vibration is another.

When Sak-el-Bahr learned the value of the capture, when he was informed that in addition to a hundred able-bodied men under the hatch, to be sold as slaves in the Sok-el-Abeed, there was a cargo of gold and silver, pearls, amber, spices and ivory and such lesser matters as gorgeous silken fabrics, rich beyond anything that had ever been seen upon the seas at any one time, he felt that the blood he had shed had not been wasted.

Let him sail fast into Algiers with these two ships, both captured in the name of Allah and his Prophet, one of them an argosy so richly freighted, a floating treasure house, and he need have little fear of what his enemies and the crafty, evil Sicilian woman might have wrought against him in his absence.

Then he made inquiry touching his two English captives, to be informed that Othmani had taken charge of them and that he had continued the treatment meted out to them by Sak-el-Bahr himself when first they were brought aboard.

He was satisfied and fell into a gentle healing sleep, whilst on the decks above his followers rendered thanks to Allah the Pitying the Pitiful, the Master of the Day of Judgment, who Alone is All-Wise, All-Knowing.

CHAPTER XIII

THE LION OF THE FAITH

Asad-ed-Din, the Lion of the Faith, Basha of Algiers, walked in the evening cool in the orchard of the Kasbah upon the heights above the city, and at his side, stepping daintily, came Fenzileh, his wife, the first lady of his harem, whom eighteen years ago he had carried off in his mighty arms from that little whitewashed village above the Straits of Messina which his followers had raided.

She had been a lissom maid of eighteen in those far-off days, the child of humble peasant folk, and she had gone uncomplaining to the arms of her swarthy ravisher. To-day, at thirty-six, she was still beautiful, more beautiful indeed than when first she had fired the passion of Asad-Reis, as he then was, one of the captains of the famous Ali-Basha. There were streaks of red in her heavy black tresses, her skin was of a soft pearliness that seemed translucent, her eyes were large, of a golden brown, astream with somber fires, her lips were full and sinuous. She was tall and of a shape that in Europe would have been accounted perfect, which is to say that she was a thought too slender for Oriental taste; she moved along beside her lord with a sinuous, languorous grace, gently stirring her fan of ostrich plumes. She was unveiled, indeed, it was her immodest habit to go naked of face more often than was seemly, which is but the least of the many undesirable infidel ways which had survived her induction into the Faith of Islam—a necessary step before Asad, who was devout to the point of bigotry, would consent to make her his wife.

He had found her such a wife as it is certain he could never have procured at home; a woman who, not content to be his toy, the plaything of his idle hours, insinuated herself into affairs, demanded and obtained his confidences and exerted over him much the same influence as the wife of a European prince might exert over her consort. In the years during which he had lain under the spell of her ripening beauty he had accepted the situation willingly enough; later, when he would have entailed her interferences, it was too late; she had taken a firm grip of the reins and Asad was in no better case than many a European husband—an anomalous and outrageous condition this for a Basha of the Prophet's House.

It was also a dangerous one for Fenzileh, for should the burden of her at any time become too heavy for her lord there was a short and easy way by which he could be rid of it.

Dauntless was she now as she paced there in the cool of the orchard under the pink and white petals of the apricots, the flaming scarlet of pomegranate blossoms and through orange groves where the golden fruit glowed amid foliage of somber green. She was at her eternal work of poisoning the mind of her lord against Sak-el-Bahr, and in her maternal jealousy she braved the dangers of such an undertaking, fully aware of how dear to the heart of Asad-ed-Din was that absent renegade corsair. It was this very affection of the Basha's for his lieutenant that was the foment of her own hate of Sak-el-Bahr, for it was an affection that transcended Asad's love for his own son and hers, and it led to the common rumor that for Sak-el-Bahr was reserved the high destiny of succeeding Asad in the Basha's.

"I tell thee thou'rt abused by him, O source of my life."

"I hear thee," answered Asad sourly. "And were thine own hearing less infirm, woman, thou wouldst have heard me answer thee that thy words weigh for naught with me against his deeds. Words may be but a mask upon our thoughts; deeds are ever the expression of them. Bear thou that in mind, O Fenzileh."

"Do I not bear in mind thine every word, O fount of wisdom?" she protested, and left him, as she often did, in doubt whether she fawned or sneered. "And it is his deeds I would have speak for him, not indeed my poor words and still less his own."

"Then, by the head of Allah, let those same deeds speak, and be thou silent."

The harsh tone of his reproof and the scowl upon his haughty face, gave her pause for a moment. He turned about.

"Come!" he said. "Soon it will be the hour of prayer."

And he paced back toward the yellow huddle of walls of the Kasbah that overtopped the green of that fragrant place.

He was a tall, gaunt man, stooping slightly at the shoulders under the burden of his years; but his eagle face was masterful, and some lingering embers of his youth still glowed in his dark eyes. Thoughtfully, with a jeweled hand, he stroked his long white beard; with the other he leaned upon her soft, plump arm, more from habit than for support, for he was full vigorous still.

High in the blue overhead a lark burst suddenly into song, and from the depths of the orchard came a gentle murmur of doves as if returning thanks for the lessening of the great heat now that the sun was sinking rapidly toward the world's edge and the shadows were lengthening.

Came Fenzileh's voice again, more musical than either, yet laden with words of evil, poison wrapped in honey.

"O my dear lord, thou'rt angered with me now. Woe me! That never may I counsel thee for thine own glory as my heart prompts me, but I must earn thy coldness."

"Abuse not him I love," said the Basha shortly. "I have told thee so full oft already."

She nestled closer to him, and her voice grew softer, more akin to the amorous cooing of the doves. "And do I not love thee, O master of my soul? Is there in all the world a heart more faithful to thee than mine? Is not thy life my life? Have not my days been all devoted to the perfecting of thine happiness? And wilt thou then frown upon me if I fear for thee at the hands of an intruder of yesterday?"

"Fear for me?" he echoed, and laughed jeeringly. "What shouldst thou fear for me from Sak-el-Bahr?"

"What all Believers must ever fear from one who is no true Moslem, from one who makes a mock and travesty of the True Faith that he may gain advancement."

The Basha checked in his stride, and turned upon her angrily.

"May thy tongue rot, thou mother of lies!"

"I am as the dust beneath thy feet, O my sweet lord, yet am I not what thine heedless anger calls me."

"Heedless?" quoth he. "Not heedless but righteous to hear one whom the Prophet guards, who is the very Javella of Islam against the breast of the unbeliever, who carries the scourge of Allah against the infidel Frankish pigs, so maligned by thee! No more, I say! Lost I bid thee make good thy words, and pay the liar's price if thou shouldst fail."

"And should I fear the test?" she countered nothing daunted. "I tell thee, O father of Marzak, that I should hold it gladly. Why, hear me now. Thou settest store by deeds, not words. Tell me, then, is it the deed of a True-Believer to waste substance upon infidel slaves, to purchase them that he may set them free?"

BROOKLYN TOWN TO FARE WELL IN GRAVELING ROADS

Hard Road from Compton to County Seat May Be Complete Next Year.

Compton—Brooklyn Township will fare well this year with gravel roads since Charles Bradshaw has been able to secure from the county enough funds to build two miles of gravel beginning at Derr's corner and running east along the Chicago road. He closed the contract Wednesday with Adolph Chohan, a local man to build on mile of this road and it is understood that the two miles will be within the next month or two. We understand that Lee Center Township will connect up their stretch of road and this will give West Brooklyn a hard road to the county seat, Charles Stout having finished the mile running from the village north to the Chicago road. Compton will have only two miles of dirt road to get to the county seat and it is hoped that this small gap will be closed up next year which will make a hard road from DeKalb county along the Chicago road to Dixon. Mr. Bradshaw has been very successful in securing this county aid to build this road and by local gravel to be put on by local men will be able to build much more road than if he had the gravel shipped in and let the contractors to outside bidders. Everyone is clamoring for hard roads and while the village of West Brooklyn will be out of the mud this year, it is only a question of waiting a short time before the rest of the township will have hard roads.

The storm completely devastated the crops in a strip about 17 miles long and three miles wide. The storm struck about 1 o'clock in the morning. All that was left standing of the corn was bare stubs about a foot high. Oats which has been threshed in that section of the country were very good, yielding from 60 to 80 bushels per acre. 70 window lights were broken in the buildings, 30 chickens were killed and more were injured or died since. On one farm, 20 dead cows were found in the barn yard. Eight hours after the storm a hailstone was found, which measured 4 inches around. The flax crop was injured less of all.

BOYS AT CAMP CUSTER SEEING MODERN WAR

Demonstrate Modern Methods Friday and Saturday.

The boys from Lee county towns who are taking the citizens' military training at Camp Custer, near Battle Creek, Mich., this month, will have a big two days' experience Friday and Saturday of this week.

The two days will be devoted to demonstrations of weapons and methods of warfare that will attract widespread attention. When the Reserve Officers Training Corps gave a similar demonstration while at Camp Custer last month, thousands were attracted from near and far to see the unusual spectacle. About 5,000 boys are now in camp there from Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, and no doubt the crowd Friday and Saturday will be as large as it was on the like occasion in July.

The feature of Friday, Aug. 22, will be a chemical warfare show, limited to defensive activities, so the spectators need fear no poison gases or liquid fire. Smoke screens will be used to protect the movement of troops that would otherwise be exposed to the view of the enemy. These screens will be created by the use of hand and rifle smoke grenades, trench mortar projectiles and airplanes.

Every facility of the camp will be utilized to take care of the crowds expected to attend both the review and the demonstrations of the two days. Officers of the 33rd regiment of infantry will be hosts to a special crowd of visitors from Detroit.

A review of all the troops on the post will take place Saturday at 10 a. m. Every facility of the camp will be utilized to take care of the crowds expected to attend both the review and the demonstrations of the two days. Officers of the 33rd regiment of infantry will be hosts to a special crowd of visitors from Detroit.

EPWORTH LEAGUE NOTES

The subject, "The Circuit Rider," as given by Miss Helen Tradewell at the Sunday evening devotionals of the chapter, was very interesting. This talk was the third in the series being given during the month of August on the founding of Methodism. Before approaching the subject in connection with the pioneer Methodist preacher, Miss Tradewell briefly spoke of some of the "Circuit Riders" of the Bible. Elijah, Philip, Timothy and Jonah, she named as men having missionary zeal for spreading the sacred Word. In England the custom of an "itinerant Ministry" was well established and, of course, there was necessarily much of this in colonial America. However, when Francis Asbury arrived he found that there was a growing tendency to "locate" and he immediately perceived that the one thing most needed was a traveling ministry. He soon had a system established whereby his ministers were covering the largest districts possible. Dangers and privations without number were faced by these brave men, including Asbury himself. "His biographers credit to him 16,000 sermons, 270,000 miles traveled, mostly on horseback, only in his later feeble years with a carriage of 224 annual conferences as president, and more than 4,000 preachers ordained. Such a record will probably remain unique in the history of the world."

Over through the trackless wilderness, beyond wagon roads, with only the Indian trails or streams to follow, out beyond the farthest settlement, anti-climating the farthest campfire, these daring self-sacrificing men made their way. An emigrant family had just pitched on the ground of its future home in the wilderness. The man, busy with his team, turned around upon hearing a salutation, and, perceiving the occupation of his visitor from his appearance, exclaimed, "What! Have you found me already? Another Methodist preacher! I left Virginia to get out of reach of them, but they got my wife and daughter in Georgia, so I came out here to find some peace from them, and here is one before my wagon is unloaded!"

The preacher, Nolley by name, gave him small comfort: "My friend, if you go to heaven you will find Methodist preachers there; if you go to hell, I'm afraid you will find some."

daughters Florence and Lois of Malta, and Mrs. Guy Waterbury and children spent Sunday at the Fred Stull home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Renner returned to their home in Joliet Saturday after having spent the past week with Mrs. Anna Waterbury.—K.

there, and you see how it is in this world, so you had better make your peace with them." The leader told some of her own recollections of a retired minister who had been a circuit-rider in his day and who had many interesting experiences. The meeting was one calculated to prove most interesting to Epworth Leaguers.

At the cabinet meeting, held this Wednesday, department reports were made and programs mapped out for early fall. Activities of unusual interest and merit are being planned.

The WELL DRESSED MAN

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Belts for the Dip

Style, like an absconding cashier, travels in circles, coming back to where it started. It appears, disappears, reappears with almost rhythmic regularity.

Most of the fashions of to-day, such as wide bottom trousers, are revivals of other days—an old dish served with a new sauce.

While this, however, applies to general styles, it is not so true of sporting styles in which swimming is a recent and remarkable development brought about by the popularity of this pastime among young men who do not "bathe" unostentatiously, but who plunge in and strike boldly forth for the waves and attention.

The introduction of the swimming suit known as the "coast-guard" or "professional" type, because it is built for business, has necessitated the designing of belts which properly and picturesquely set off such a suit and make it look as trim as it feels. Thus, the brilliantly striped, waterproofed belt now disputes supremacy with the plain white canvas belt, long the standard for water sports.

The three belts, reproduced here, give a good idea of the styles most prevalent this season for swimmers. The first is the narrow web belt with a bright stripe spanning the centre. The second is the wide belt of white waterproofed webbing. The third is the vivid belt in college, club, regimental or blazer stripes worn with solid-colored trunks and, often, to match the cross stripes upon one's swimming shirt. All these belts are correct; it is an affair of preference, not propriety, which one you might select.

Of course, the brilliantly striped belt should only be adopted by the youngster, who has the sapience to "carry off" so extreme a style with a bit of swank. It looks rather silly upon the older man, whose figure has bumps where dents ought to be. This is equally true of those broad-striped swimming shirts, which shine out like the setting sun upon a copper roof. Appropriateness to one's years and lines is a fundamental part of the creed of correct dress. Never pretend to a youthfulness you don't possess.

Pajama-Clad Pana Man

Talks Judge Out of Fine

Pana, Ill.—Contending that he had a perfect right to appear on the streets clad only in pajamas, an unidentified citizen argued a local magistrate out of a fine of $10 and costs, after he had been arrested while strolling about the main streets on a warm afternoon.

"Your honor, I've got as much clothes on as any flapper in this city," parried the citizen, when haled into court and fined.

The magistrate pondered, finally remitted the fine and suspended sentence, ordering the pajama-clad man to confine his strolls to his own back yard.

AFRAID SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Operation Advised, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made It Unnecessary

Glasgow, Kentucky.—"I was run-down, nervous, with no appetite. My side had given me trouble for five or six years. At times it was all I could do to live, and the doctor said I couldn't live but a short time longer without an operation. That was two years ago. My sister-in-law recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She had never used it herself, but she said one of her neighbors suffered just like I did, and it cured her. After I had taken four bottles the pain left my side. I had a fine appetite to eat anything that was put before me, and I began to do all my work and my washing, something I hadn't done for years. I am a dressmaker, and this last fall I began suffering with my side again, so I began taking the Vegetable Compound again. I am on my fourth bottle, which makes eight in all I have taken. I feel so much better when I take it and everybody tells me I look better. My appetite improves and I feel stronger in every way. I am a very nervous woman and it seems to help my nerves so much."—Mrs. MAGGIE WALLER, Glasgow, Kentucky.

The NERVOUS WRECK

by E. J. Rath

©1924—by NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric young easterner, is driving Sally Morgan from her father's ranch to the station when they run out of gasoline. At the point of a gun the Wreck takes five gallons from a passing car.

Later Charlie McSwen, foreman of a ranch along the way, hides the Wreck's car and forces Sally to act as cook. Then they discover that Mr. Underwood, the owner of the ranch, was in the car which they held up. Sheriff Rob Wells, who is Sally's fiance, is unwittingly searching the countryside for the "bandits" who held up Underwood. Young Chester Underwood, son of the owner, chances upon the shed in which McSwen has hidden the Wreck's car, and tells his father.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Excellent advice; but Underwood himself had omitted to follow it, and he actually had his hands on the bandit car.

"Get a lantern," he said. "Let's go down and have a look at it."

Chester fetched a lantern from the kitchen, and they went down to the tool shed. Jerome Underwood examined the mysterious flivver with more attention than he had ever given to his own imported car. He studied the license plate with a searching eye, trying to make him believe that it awakened recollection. He could not be sure, but the more he looked at it the more familiar it seemed to be. Unconsciously, he was creating a memory of it, which might, after all, serve just as well.

The missing wheel baffled him. He could not invent a reason for it. Had there been a smash-up which crumpled a wheel, there would almost certainly be other marks on the car. But all it showed were a few ordinary dents and a myriad of scratches, common to hundreds of thousands of other flivvers all over the world. Standing there on its three wheels, with a soap-box serving as a crutch in place of the fourth, the dusty thing possessed an uncanny faculty of annoying him. He was aware of a feeling of resentment toward it. He had hated flivvers all ways; the people who drove them as he saw them, never had any road manners. It was useless to pass them in the highway and leave them sputtering in your wake, because there was always another one ahead. Now it seemed that his diffused hatred came to a focus on one solitary specimen out of all the millions.

He led the way back to the house, swinging the lantern and trying to make something out of Chester's discovery. When they entered the living room he did the obvious thing.

LETTER FROM LESSIE PRESCOTT TO RUTH BURKE, CONTINUED

The hours wore on, mother becoming more and more excited. I called up Karl's house almost every half hour. At last, about one o'clock at night, I tried to make mother go to bed. She would not, however, but she insisted that I should lie down for a while.

ing, she came to my room in a very excited manner and said:

"Leslie, look here what the morning papers have to say about Alice."

My heart sank clear to my feet. Had Alice really made good her threat and killed herself?

She certainly had not. Instead, she had gotten hold of Karl Whitney and they had been married late in the afternoon and left for New York.

Just what Alice told Karl I cannot imagine, but I know well enough to know that whatever she told him, if she threw herself upon his pitying chivalry, he would do anything she asked him.

The clipping from the paper read:

"Late yesterday afternoon Miss Alice Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Graves Hamilton, was married to Mr. Karl Whitney very quietly. It will be remembered that Mr. Whitney and Miss Hamilton issued invitations to a large wedding a week or two ago, but owing to the sudden illness of Miss Hamilton's father, the invitations were recalled."

"The young people were married at the rectory of the Church of the Epiphany, and evidently have gone out of town for a day or two. For a moment Mr. Whitney was seen as they were leaving the rectory, and he said that the hurried marriage was decided upon yesterday, for although Mr. Hamilton was gaining daily, it would be quite a while before he would be able to stand the excitement of a large wedding. 'Naturally,' said Mr. Whitney with a smile, 'neither myself nor my wife cared to wait for an indefinite period.'"

"The wedding of Mr. Whitney and Miss Hamilton unites two of the largest fortunes in Pittsburgh. Mr. Hamilton is one of the great steel magnates of the world, and Karl Whitney was the heir to not only his father's immense fortune, but those of his two uncles. He is reputed to be worth sixty million."

"It has been rumored that Mrs. Whitney was so pleased with her visit abroad that she would like to make her home there. If this is true, it will mean that another great American fortune will be taken to England."

Ruth, doesn't that sound just like one of our blatant, snobbish, bow-to-wealth notices of a rich marriage? Sometimes I feel as though Americans, with their worship of money, are thoroughly disgusting. If I should say this to any one but you, they might think that I was jealous, but I certainly am not.

I'm very happy to think that I am able to earn my own living with our little shop, if necessary, and that if Jack and I do make up our quarrel—and, oh, Ruth, I cannot think of living without Jack—that we both will have to work and worry and plan to put little Jack through college and live as respectable and self-respecting citizens.

Mother just broke down and cried as I read the clipping which I have quoted to you.

"I wish I had never sent Alice to England," she said.

Mooseheart Girls Will All Have Their Hair Cut

Aurora, Ill.—Three hundred and fifty orphan girls at the Mooseheart home here will visit the Moose home barber shop within the next week for a complete hairbob, following a decision of the home officials. Former rules did not allow the girls to bob their hair.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, on a visit to the home, suggested that the girls be permitted to bob their hair, with the consent of their nearest relatives.

The Best Vacation Trip.

Springfield, Aug. 21.—Greatest benefits from summer vacations come to those who make the most complete changes in activity and environment, and not to those who get the most complete rest, according to Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director.

"Rural district laborers and farmers may have the most beneficial vacation by visiting the busy cities for two or three weeks, while a job on the farm or a few weeks outdoors would be the best rest for the office man or city family," said Dr. Rawlings.

50% longer car-life

1,000,000 Michelin Balloon Tires

now running prove they save hundreds of dollars per car

It is now an established fact that it pays to use Michelin Balloon Tires. They save the car so completely from destructive jars and jolts that it lasts as much as 50% longer. And the tires last longer, too.

It is easy to change to Michelin

Balloons. Begin with a pair on your rear wheels, and use up your old tires in front. No change of wheels or rims is necessary. The only spare you need is one of your old tires.

Michelin is the leading maker of balloon tires for present rims.
